When the teacher announced the contest for the school project, I immediately thought of a very good idea. I was so excited that I told my best friend, Alice, about it. She liked it, so I started working on the idea.

On the day of the presentations, I was still feeling proud of my project. But when Alice presented her project, I was completely shocked. It was my idea! Everyone in the class applauded her, and the teacher said she was very impressed. Alice didn't look at me once.
